DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-12, 56-59, 77-84 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Tanaka (USP 5,939,871). Tanaka (see figure 3) teaches a control circuit (7) to control output voltage, Vout, with override control (5 and 6) to effect the minimum current limit. The fact that the minimum current is negative is inherent.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanaka (5,939,871) in view of Shinada (USP 5,708,571). Tanaka discloses the claimed invention except for the use of fixed duty cycle and transition times which are short relative to the on and off states of the controlled rectifiers. Shinada discloses that it is known in the art to provide the use of fixed duty cycle and transition times which are short relative to the on and off states of the controlled rectifiers. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to provide the use of fixed duty cycle and transition times which are short relative to the on and off states of the controlled rectifiers of Shinada with the DC/DC controller of Tanaka, in order to provide a synchronous rectifying circuit decreasing driving and continuity loss.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 7-1-2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The crux of applicant's argument is that the diode of the cited prior art Tanaka is being used to control the minimum current. This is an incorrect reading of the circuit. First the diode is a passive element. The diode cannot function to control anything because it cannot turn on or off nor can it sense any current. The cited comparators 3 and 4 served to sense the output current by sending this sensed value to the control circuit and thereby effectively control the minimum current limit at the output.
